IDENTITY IN CHRIST

Who Are You Outside of What You Do?

Your productivity is not your worth. Your performance is not your identity. Somewhere along the way, many of us forgot that.

We've confused doing with being.

In a culture that celebrates the grind, it's easy to tie your value to your output. But when the output stops — due to burnout, illness, loss, season change — who are you then?

Your identity predates your achievements.

Before you built anything, accomplished anything, proved anything — you were made in the image of God. That's the foundation. Not your resume. Not your roles. Not your results.

Therapy helps you find your way back.

Untangling your worth from your performance is deep, meaningful work. It asks hard questions. And it leads somewhere better — a self that can rest, fail, and still be whole.

You are more than what you produce.

Follow for identity-rooted, faith-based mental health content.