What Does 'Enough' Feel Like to You?

When was the last time you felt like enough — not almost enough, not enough if — just enough, as you are?

The finish line keeps moving.

So many of us are running a race against a target that shifts every time we get close. More productivity. More proof. More achievement. The clinical term is 'conditional self-worth.' The human term is exhausting.

You are made in his image.

Genesis 1:27 — 'God created mankind in his own image.' Not a rough draft. Not a work in progress. In. His. Image. That truth alone repositions everything. You were enough before you did anything.

This week's practice.

Write 3 things you did well this week — not achievements, just moments where you showed up as yourself. That counts. You showing up counts. You count.

You are already enough.

Drop a ⍰ if this landed for you.